

As of February 2013, the Indiana Uplands became a federally recognized grape-growing region, known as an American Viticultural Area, or AVA.

The 4,800-square-mile uplands in south-central Indiana includes nine wineries on the Indiana Uplands Wine Trail. This is the first American Viticultural Area entirely within Indiana, and the designation allows the wineries to grow and thrive together.

Visit each of the nine Indiana Uplands Wine Trail wineries and taste the unique wines that have transpired from the hillsides of this American Viticultural Area. Acquire an Indiana Uplands Wine Trail Passport and receive a free gift and a chance for the grand prize once stamped by each of the nine wineries.

Come and experience the unique wines of the Indiana Uplands Wine Trail!
